CHINESE INVESTMENTS IN SOUTHEAST ASIA Patterns and Significance

by Evelyn Goh and Liu Nan

About the AUTHORS

Evelyn Goh is the Shedden Professor of Strategic Policy Studies at the Australian National University, where she is also the Director of the Southeast Asia Institute.

Liu Nan received her Master of Business Information Systems from the Australian National University's College of Business and Economics, and her Bachelor of Economics and Finance from the University of Hong Kong.

About the BOOK

Southeast Asia's growing economic linkages with China have generated political opportunities and strategic concerns in equal measure. This study provides a fuller picture of Chinese investments in Southeast Asia for those seeking to understand its significance and impacts. From their carefully constructed dataset, Goh and Liu provide a regionwide, multi-sectoral analysis quantitative survey and analysis of key changes in Chinese investments in Southeast Asian economies over fifteen years, from 2005 to 2019. Additionally, they provide a qualitative assessment of the geopolitical significance of these trends and patterns. Thus, this study creates a baseline understanding of more recent Chinese investments in the region. In the near future, when a feasible data series can be collated for the years from 2020, it will also allow a sharper analysis of the effects of the COVID-19 pandemic on Chinese investments in the region.

She is also an honorary senior researcher at the American Studies Center, Universitas Indonesia, and the Indonesian Institute of Advanced International Studies (INADIS), Jakarta, Indonesia.

About the BOOK

The global war against terrorism has created pressure for Indonesia to improve its security measures to deal with maritime terrorism. Following the 9/11 attacks and the 2002 Bali bombing, Indonesia has improved the security of its major ports and entered various international agreements to ensure its trading activities are not impeded. At the same time, in a bid to secure small ports and coastal areas in various parts of the country, preman—self-supporting, autonomous paramilitary—organizations began to play a greater role. This book explores the involvement of preman organizations in securing ports and coastlines in Jakarta, North Sulawesi and the Riau Islands. The security of ports and coastal areas in the three provinces is of international importance because of their proximity to major sea lanes of communication. The book carefully maps out the tensions, contradictions and implications of the use of preman organizations in the realization of Indonesia's efforts to be a truly democratic civil society.

About the EDITORS

Steven Rood is Fellow-in-Residence at the Social Weather Stations and Visiting Fellow at the Australian National University.

Veronica L. Taylor is a socio-legal scholar and Professor of Law and Regulation at the Australian National University in the School of Regulation and Global Governance (RegNet).

About the BOOK

The Duterte administration (2016–22) marked the return of an authoritarian style of rule in the Philippines. It was also accompanied by an economic recovery that was better than many expected, at least until the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic. Both during and following the Duterte period, the country was buffeted by a series of internal and external shocks that called into question the state's legal and social policy contract with its citizens.

This period of “contesting the Philippines” was an intense, normative and practical struggle to shape (or reshape) some of the Philippines' most critical institutions: the Constitution, the presidency, the Supreme Court and the rule of law, the free press, regional autonomy and independent regulatory institutions. These developments energized many domestic policy actors: technocrats, the business sector, civil society organizations, the police and the military, armed groups and religious leaders across the spectrum of Filipino politics. This volume considers some key sites of contestation between and among domestic policy actors, including the executive, during this eventful period for political and legal institutions in the Philippines.

RISING CHINA'S SOFT POWER IN SOUTHEAST ASIA

Impact on Education and Popular Culture

About the EDITOR

Leo Suryadinata is currently Visiting Senior Fellow at the ISEAS – Yusof Ishak Institute, Singapore. He was formerly Professor in the Department of Political Science at the National University of Singapore.

About the BOOK

The book addresses the issues of China's soft power in Southeast Asia during the rise of China. This soft power includes Chinese language education and popular culture. With regard to Chinese education, prior to the rise of China, Chinese schools were catered to mainly overseas Chinese children. Non-Chinese seldom received Chinese education. However, the rise of China and the export of Confucius Institutes (CIs) changed the landscape as CIs are meant for the non-Chinese population as well. China's educational soft power penetrated the larger non-Chinese community, making Chinese soft power more effective. Chinese popular culture has also infiltrated the non-Chinese population.

Various chapters in this book show that rising China's soft power in Southeast Asia has grown quite significantly, particularly in terms of the Chinese language and Chinese popular culture. Nevertheless, its popularity still lags behind American soft power. The Chinese language is still not as popular as the English language. The same could also be said for Chinese popular culture. The growth of China's soft power faces tremendous challenges in the Southeast Asian region. Its further growth would depend on China's continuous economic power and cordial relations with the Southeast Asian countries.

GAMES, CHANGES, AND FEARS The Philippines from Duterte to Marcos Jr.

Est. pub. date: Mid-2024

About the EDITORS

Aries Arugay is Visiting Senior Fellow and Coordinator of the Philippine Studies Programme of the ISEAS-Yusof Ishak Institute.

He is also Professor and Chairperson of the Department of Political Science at the University of the Philippines-Diliman.

Jean Encinas-Franco is Professor and Assistant Chair of the Department of Political Science, University of the Philippines, Diliman.

About the BOOK

Rodrigo Duterte's rise and the Marcoses' return to power have captivated Southeast Asia watchers and the rest of the world. That the spectacle of strongman rule has allured most Filipinos is no longer in doubt, with the strong electoral mandate garnered by Ferdinand Marcos Jr. in 2022. Whether their capture of state power is in any way connected and what this portends about the country's democratic future is a key theme marking Games, Changes, and Fears. In this volume, Filipino academics and practitioners provide much needed analysis about this political succession and what it means for Asia's oldest republic. Packed with thirteen chapters depicting insightful trends and prognosis on the Philippine economy, domestic politics, foreign policy, and society, this volume offers scholars, students, and policymakers with the analytical repertoire to understand developments in the Philippines. Overall, the chapters suggest that while some policies and practices continue under the Marcos Jr. administration, there have been pivotal changes indicating a break from the past. The chapters offer key policy recommendations critical in recalibrating Philippine political, economic, and social conditions that could address democratic backsliding, economic challenges, and societal polarization.

POPULATIONS AND PRECARITY DURING THE COVID-19 PANDEMIC Southeast Asian Perspectives

edited by
Kevin S.Y. Tan and Steve K.L. Chan

About the EDITORS

Kevin S.Y. Tan is a sociologist and cultural anthropologist. He is an Instructor at the Chua Thian Poh Community Leadership Centre at the National University of Singapore.

Steve K.L. Chan is an Assistant Professor of Sociology at the Keimyung University, South Korea. He has been affiliated with the Social Research Institute of Chulalongkorn University and the Regional Center for Social Science and Sustainable Development of the Chiangmai University as Visiting Research Fellow.

About the BOOK

This volume is a collection of articles that examines how the COVID-19 pandemic affected and intersected with various Southeast Asian contexts in the broad areas of migration, education and demographic policy. At the height of the pandemic from 2020 to 2022, the resulting restrictions to international travel, ensuing nationwide lockdowns and eventual economic crises formed part of what many commentators referred to as a “new normal”. Apart from being a global health crisis, the pandemic disrupted and transformed the experience of everyday life at all levels of society, where many of its effects are now likely irreversible. In particular, the impact of the pandemic certainly affected the most vulnerable individuals and communities throughout the region, especially when taking into account the demographic transformations in countries that are experiencing rapid ageing such as Singapore and Thailand. Examples of the most affected include low-wage migrant workers, the disabled and the children of impoverished families. For many who were already living in a state of precarity, the structural “side-effects” of the pandemic were at times more deadly than the coronavirus itself as it often negatively impacted livelihood, social-emotional ties and overall well-being. At the same time, the “new normal” has further created conditions that raise the likelihood of occupational precarity even for long-term professionals within established fields like education. In other words, few experienced the COVID-19 pandemic without encountering both tangible and intangible challenges, regardless of where one was situated. Hence, by merging the theme of precarity with that of the pandemic’s undeniable and exacerbating effects, this volume hopes to establish a useful platform to reflect and learn from a range of scholarly views that can contribute to new knowledge and inform policymaking in Southeast Asian societies.

SHIPWRECKS AND THE MARITIME HISTORY OF SINGAPORE

edited by
Kwa Chong Guan

About the EDITOR

Kwa Chong Guan is Senior Fellow, S. Rajaratnam School of International Studies, Nanyang Technological University; Associate Fellow, Temasek History Research Centre; and Adjunct (Hon.) Associate Professor, History Department, National University of Singapore.

About the BOOK

On 16 June 2021 the National Heritage Board announced the successful conclusion of the archaeological excavation of two shipwrecks at the eastern approach to Singapore. This maritime excavation, the largest in Singapore's waters, was conducted by the Archaeology Unit of the ISEAS – Yusof Ishak Institute over a six-year period. This book documents the two shipwrecks and their findings, complemented by essays on Singapore's larger maritime history through time, from Temasek in the 14th century through the emergence of country trade to the late 18th century. Beyond the finds recovered from the bosom of the sea, the positioning of the shipwreck in the contexts of the past challenges us to rethink Singapore's history as a globally entangled one, determined by what was happening on the seas in and around the island.

About the BOOK

What are trending Islamic ideas in Southeast Asia; how are they transmitted and who transmits them? These are questions that linger among the minds of policymakers, diplomats and scholars interested in Islam in Southeast Asia. Trending Islam maps and discusses key personalities, groups or institutions that influence Muslims in the region. This book dedicates more space to discuss the role of the Internet in disseminating religious discourses. Internet's role, in particular the use of social media either to advance interpretations of Islamic ideas or to gain influence in the public sphere, is becoming more significant as it allows information to spread faster and wider. While not discounting traditional issues such as extremism and terrorism, matters that continue to affect many people's lives in the region, the book delves into the interaction between violent and non-violent extremism and the liberal and progressive responses to them. Trending Islam covers the transmission of Islam in several countries and some case studies.

UNDERSTANDING THE ROLE OF INDONESIAN MILLENNIALS IN SHAPING THE NATION'S FUTURE

edited by

Maria Monica Wihardja

About the EDITORS

Ju-Lan Thung is Senior Researcher at the Research Center for Society and Culture - The Indonesian Institute of Sciences.

Maria Monica Wihardja is Visiting Fellow at the ISEAS – Yusof Ishak Institute, Singapore and a former World Bank Economist in the World Bank's Poverty and Equity Global Practice. She was the recipient of the Nikkei Asian Scholar 2023.

About the BOOK

Millennials or Generation Y—those born between 1981 and 1996—represent the population cohort who are moving into the prime of their careers and lives. It is this generation that is being groomed to take up leadership roles in various sectors of society.

In Indonesia, those from the millennial generation are slated to take up positions as leaders in various important spheres of society. But, the country's demographic changes call for comprehending the intergenerational gap that is at the core of the so-called millennial disruptions.

This book is a compendium of writings to provide a broad picture of the role of millennials in Indonesia's future. One chapter covers generational differences in life course events; two chapters cover the role of millennials in changing the political landscape; two chapters delve into generational differences in risk-taking behaviours in the financial sector and digital competency among MSME entrepreneurs; two chapters examine millennials' religious views on the cryptocurrency economy and generational differences in the spiritual process of self-discovery; and two chapters study participatory art among millennials and how millennial artists respond to NFT technology.

VISITING SEXUAL EXPLOITATION

How Should Indonesia Strengthen Its Policies to Curb Sex Work in Response to Its Extramarital Sex Criminalization

by
Jason Hung

About the AUTHOR

Jason Hung is a final-year PhD in Sociology candidate at the University of Cambridge. He is a columnist at The China Global South Project.

About the BOOK

Similar to neighbouring Southeast Asian countries, Indonesia is, simultaneously, infamous for its prevailing sex tourism economy, sex industry and sex trafficking activities. On 6 December 2022, Indonesia's parliament passed the criminal code to criminalize extramarital sex. The anti-extramarital sex legalization was established to help reinforce Indonesia's, following Islamic Law, stance of disallowing sexual behaviours beyond marital relationships. Those who engage in extramarital sex, per the criminal code, are sentenced to up to a year in prison.

This book responds to Indonesia's latest legislation that passed the criminal code of criminalizing any act of extramarital sex. The formation of the arguments made in this book is based on the premise that, by criminalizing extramarital sex, the Indonesian government aims to, in part, crack down on the local prostitution industry to minimize any act of, child or not, sexual exploitation, prostitution and sex trafficking. The book presents how cracking down on the local or regional (i.e., Southeast Asian) prostitution industry cannot be accomplished by simply taking legislative actions.

The highlights of this book are the policymaking discourse on how local Indonesian policymakers should respond to such an unequal power of relations and the prevalence of sex work. The book, moreover, visits the anti-extramarital sex legislation in order to explain how the Indonesian government should endeavour to crack down on its domestic sex industry in order to uphold the values of human rights and lower the prevalence of the practice of commercial sex.

PUTTING WOMEN UP Gender Equality and Politics in Myanmar

edited by
Netina Tan and Meredith L. Weiss

About the EDITORS

Netina Tan is University Fellow and Associate Professor of Political Science at McMaster University, Canada.

Meredith L. Weiss is Professor and Chair of Political Science in the Rockefeller College of Public Affairs and Policy at the University at Albany, State University of New York, U.S.A.

About the BOOK

For the duration of Myanmar's experiment with electoral democracy, why did some women run for political office, and not others? What role did gatekeepers such as party leaders play in those decisions, and using what criteria in selecting candidates? How did experience of domestic violence or harassment affect women's likelihood to participate in politics, especially beyond the local level? And what implications might these earlier patterns have for a post-coup Myanmar, should meaningful elections be restored?

The contributors to Putting Women Up: Gender Equality and Politics in Myanmar answer these questions by examining the internal politics of nine political parties in Myanmar and both men's and women's attitudes towards and experiences of political leadership. Drawing on extensive interview, survey, and focus-group discussion data collected from across Myanmar in 2017 and 2020, this book offers a mixed-methods approach to explain how factors from party rules to formative personal trauma to patriarchal biases to ethno-religious context shape women's and men's likelihood to join local and national politics. The findings expand on culturalist insights on gender inequality to provide context-sensitive, evidence-backed policy recommendations to promote women's political leadership, despite militarization and violence in post-coup Myanmar.
