The Editor invites submission of manuscripts within the field of domestic politics, strategic/security issues, political economy, regionalism and international affairs as they impinge on Southeast Asian and the wider Asia-Pacific region. Manuscripts should be double-spaced and between 6,000–8,000 words, including endnotes and an abstract. Research findings of shorter length, as well as reports of on-going research projects, are also invited. Manuscripts should be in Word-format and should be sent electronically to the e-mail address below. CSEA uses endnotes and follows the rules set out in Chapter 15 of the Chicago Manual Style, 12th edition. Authors should use British English. CSEA does not accept manuscripts that have already been published or are simultaneously being considered for publication elsewhere. Manuscripts accepted for consideration will be refereed by external readers.

EDITOR’S NOTE

The seven articles featured in this special focus of Contemporary Southeast Asia were first presented at “Southern Thailand: Anatomy of an Insurgency, 2004–2009”, a conference held at the Institute of Southeast Asian Studies (ISEAS) in Singapore on 10–11 March 2009. Since the conference the papers have been revised and updated to reflect the latest developments in the ongoing insurgency in Thailand’s far south. The editorial committee would like to express its gratitude to the Konrad-Adenauer-Stiftung for its generous financial support of the March 2009 conference.
