ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Asad graduated with Honours in English from Presidency College, Calcutta, and received his Master of Letters degree in History at Clare Hall, Cambridge, where he was Raffles (Chevening) and S. Rajaratnam Scholar. He was a member of the president’s committee of the Cambridge Union Society, and a member of the editorial committee of the Cambridge Review of International Affairs.

Asad was a Fulbright Visiting Scholar at Harvard University’s Weatherhead Center for International Affairs. A journalist before joining ISEAS, he worked at The Statesman in Calcutta, Asiaweek in Hong Kong, and The Business Times and The Straits Times in Singapore. He was a Jefferson Fellow at the East-West Center in Hawaii.