THE COMPREHENSIVE AND PROGRESSIVE AGREEMENT FOR TRANS-PACIFIC PARTNERSHIP
Implications for Southeast Asia

edited by
Cassey Lee and Pritish Bhattacharya

About the BOOK
The Comprehensive and Progressive Agreement for Trans-Pacific Partnership (CPTPP) is a free trade agreement involving major countries across the Asia Pacific region. The trade pact, which entered into force on 30 December 2018, is considered by many to be the “gold standard”, given its ambitious scope and depth.

This volume offers multi-dimensional insights into the CPTPP and its impact on Southeast Asia. It begins with broad analyses covering the historical, economic and geopolitical aspects of the CPTPP. Subsequent chapters focus on the nature and implications of three key path-breaking provisions in the trade agreement, namely investor-state dispute settlement, intellectual property rights and state-owned enterprises. The effect of the CPTPP on Southeast Asia in terms of regional production networks is also examined from the perspective of Japanese multinational enterprises. The potential economic impact of the agreement is analysed for member countries (Vietnam and Malaysia) as well as countries that aspire to join the CPTPP in the future (Indonesia and Thailand).

THE RIAU ISLANDS
Setting Sail

edited by
Francis E. Hutchinson and Siwage Dharma Negara

About the EDITORS

Francis E. Hutchinson is Senior Fellow and Coordinator of the Regional Economics Studies Programme at the ISEAS – Yusof Ishak Institute, Singapore.

Siwage Dharma Negara is Senior Fellow, Co-Coordinator of the Indonesia Studies Programme, and Coordinator for the Singapore APEC Study Centre at the ISEAS – Yusof Ishak Institute, Singapore.

About the BOOK

To Singapore’s immediate south, Indonesia’s Riau Islands has a population of 2 million and a land area of 8,200 sq km scattered across some 2,000 islands. The better-known islands include: Batam, the province’s economic motor; Bintan, the area’s cultural heartland and site of the provincial capital, Tanjungpinang; and Karimun, a ship-building hub strategically located near the Straits of Malacca.

Leveraging on its proximity to Singapore, the Riau Islands—and particularly Batam—have been a key part of Indonesia’s strategy to develop its manufacturing sector since the 1990s. In addition to generating a large number of formal sector jobs and earning foreign exchange, this reorientation opened the way for a number of far-reaching political and social developments. Key among them has been: large-scale migration from other parts of the country; the secession of the Riau Islands from the larger Riau Province; and the creation of a new provincial government.

Building on earlier work by the ISEAS – Yusof Ishak Institute on the SIJORI Cross-Border Region, spanning Singapore, the Malaysian state of Johor, and the Riau Islands, and a second volume looking specifically at Johor, the third volume in this series explores the key challenges facing this fledgling Indonesian province.

Adopting a multidisciplinary framework, this book explores three issues: what have been the social, political, and environmental effects of the rapid economic change set in motion in the Riau Islands; to what extent can or should the province seek to reconfigure its manufacturing-based economy; and how have the decentralization reforms implemented across Indonesia affected the Riau Islands.

COVID-19 AND THE STRUCTURAL CRISES OF OUR TIME

by
Lim Mah-Hui and Michael Heng Siam-Heng

Est. pub. date: Late 2021

About the AUTHORS
Lim Mah-Hui's professional background spans thirty years as an international banker and academician. He has a multi-disciplinary background in economics, sociology and finance. Michael Heng Siam-Heng is a retired professor of management studies.

About the BOOK
“We live in paradoxical times. Traditionally, the West has led the world in theory and practice. Yet, recent developments, from COVID-19 to the storming of the U.S. Capitol, show how lost the West has become. This loss of direction has deep roots. In his usual thoughtful and incisive fashion, Lim Mah-Hui, with his co-author Michael Heng Siam-Heng, draws out the deeper origins of our current crises and shows us a new way forward. A must read for anyone who wants to understand our strange times.”

Kishore Mahbubani, the founding Dean of the Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy, NUS, is the author of Has China Won?

“...A powerful and compelling critique of neoliberal globalization and its potentially devastating, but long underestimated, consequences for financial stability, the environment, social equity and democracy. COVID-19 has laid bare these dysfunctions and stresses. But this is not a pessimistic book. The authors argue, correctly, that we may be on the cusp of another Great Transformation. The choices we make today to make markets more resilient, improve social protection, and preserve our freedoms could lay the foundations for a sustainable globalisation that works for future generations.”

Donald Low, Professor of Practice in Public Policy and Director of the Institute for Emerging Market Studies, Hong Kong University of Science and Technology.

INFILTRATING SOCIETY
The Thai Military’s Internal Security Affairs
by Puangthong Pawakapan

About the AUTHOR
Puangthong Pawakapan is Associate Professor in the Faculty of Political Science, Chulalongkorn University.

About the BOOK
“Thai politics is driven by actors and actions of paradox such as anti-election movements for accountability or independent, partisan organizations. This lucidly written book uncovers the ‘military-led civil affairs’ that earn the armed forces the omnipotent role in Thai society. It enriches our understanding of the Thai military in both empirical and theoretical ways. Empirically, the book illuminates how the soldiers have been intensively involved in supposedly civic activities ranging from forest land management to poverty reduction. Such long-lasting and extensive involvement means the military could mobilize the organized mass of over 500,000 strong when necessary. Theoretically, readers will learn how an ideological discourse (“threats to national security”) has been continuously redefined to serve the military’s evolving political and rent-seeking missions from the Cold War era to the twenty-first century. It also traces the persistence and mutation of this highly adaptable organization, the one that knows when to roar and when to camouflage. Still waters run deep; Thai military operations run deeper and wider.”

— Veerayooth Kanchoochat, Associate Professor of Political Economy, National Graduate Institute for Policy Studies (GRIPS), Tokyo

“A truly monumental work about Thailand's military from the 1960s until today, this solid study focuses upon the armed forces’ internal security role across Thai society, how the military has succeeded in legitimizing itself and boosting its power as a counterinsurgency force, guardian of monarchy and engine of development. The book also valuably looks at the military’s establishment of mass organizations beginning during the Cold War and mobilization of royalists since 2006. The book thus illustrates how the military has been able to enhance and sustain its overwhelming influence and is thus a valuable study for anyone wanting to understand key power-brokers in Thailand.”

PRAETORIANS, PROFITEERS OR PROFESSIONALS?
Studies on the Militaries of Myanmar and Thailand

*edit*ed by
Michael J. Montesano, Terence Chong and Prajak Kongkirati

About the EDITORS
Michael J. Montesano is the Coordinator of the Thailand Studies Programme at the ISEAS – Yusof Ishak Institute, Singapore.
Terence Chong is Deputy Director and Senior Fellow at the ISEAS – Yusof Ishak Institute, Singapore.
Prajak Kongkirati is an Assistant Professor in the Faculty of Political Science, Thammasat University, Bangkok.

About the BOOK
Praetorians, Profiteers or Professionals? contributes to the ongoing renaissance in scholarship on Southeast Asia’s armed forces and their political, social and economic roles. This renaissance comes in an era in which the states of the region, and the societies and economies that they govern, have grown complex beyond all recognition. Nevertheless, understanding those states’ armies remains crucial.

Emphasizing the ideologies and economic activities of the militaries of two large Mainland Southeast Asian neighbours, this volume transcends clichés about coups, coercion, caudillos and kings. Its findings will challenge the thinking of even long-time observers of the region, not least through its comparative perspective and the fresh understanding of the roles and orientations of the armed forces of Myanmar and Thailand that that perspective suggests.

FLYING BLIND
Vietnam’s Decision to Join ASEAN

by

Nguyen Vu Tung

About the AUTHOR

Nguyen Vu Tung is a professor at the Diplomatic Academy of Vietnam. He gained a PhD degree in Political Science from Columbia University (New York, USA) and serves as Vietnamese diplomat in the United States of America and the Republic of Korea.

About the BOOK

This book discusses Vietnam’s relations with ASEAN in the period from the early 1970s to mid-1990s. It focuses on the evolution of Hanoi’s view on ASEAN, from denial to integration in the organization. Further, it reveals the reasons behind Hanoi’s decision to join ASEAN in 1995 in the context of the transformation of the overall Vietnam’s foreign policy when the Cold War ended. Relaxation of the Cold War conditions allowed Hanoi to improve understanding of ASEAN that resulted in better Vietnam-ASEAN relations and subsequent Vietnam’s membership in ASEAN.

The author has had access to documents and interviewees that few other researchers can rival. And the richness of the empirical evidence of this book makes a significant contribution to the studies of Vietnam foreign relations in specific and Southeast Asian international relations in general.

“This is a uniquely well-informed account of Vietnam’s serious internal debates leading to the decision to join ASEAN in 1995. The story starts with a probing analysis of Hanoi’s regional diplomacy and relations with the Soviet Union, China, and the United States from the 1970s onward. Entering the 1990s, the narrative shows how Vietnamese policymakers struggled to reconcile ideological and pragmatic considerations as they navigated complex great-power and regional environments. Professor Tung dispels conventional balance-of-power explanations for Hanoi’s embrace of ASEAN, and argues persuasively that the decision to join grew out of a shift from a revolutionary national identity to an identity centered on developmental state model of the Southeast Asian type. This honest and close-up view of policy debates offers a rare opportunity for readers to understand the logic of policymaking in one of the world’s most complex diplomatic environments.”

YOUNG SOEHARTO
The Making of a Soldier, 1921–1945
by
David Jenkins

About the AUTHOR
David Jenkins, who graduated in Law (1965) and Arts (1967) from Melbourne University, was a foreign correspondent in Southeast Asia for many years. He was a co-winner of a Walkley Award for his contribution to the Herald’s coverage from Jakarta and East Timor during the violent 1999 referendum on independence.

About the BOOK
When a reluctant President Sukarno gave Lt Gen Soeharto full executive authority in March 1966, Indonesia was a broken-back state, fractured along class, religious and ethnic lines. Soeharto took a nation in chaos, the largest in Southeast Asia, and transformed it into one of the “Asian miracle” economies—only to leave it back on the brink of ruin when he was forced from office thirty-two years later.

Drawing on his astonishing range of interviews with leading Indonesian generals, former Imperial Japanese Army officers and men who served in the Dutch colonial army, as well as years of patient research in Dutch, Japanese, British, Indonesian and US archives, David Jenkins brings vividly to life the story of how a socially reticent but exceptionally determined young man from rural Java began his rise to power—an ascent which would be capped by thirty years (1968–98) as President of Indonesia, the fourth most populous nation on earth.

Soeharto was one of Asia’s most brutal, most durable, most avaricious and most successful dictators. In the course of examining those aspects of his character, this book provides an accessible, highly readable introduction to the complex, but dramatic and utterly absorbing, social, political, religious, economic and military factors that have shaped, and which continue to shape, Indonesia.

ENVIRONMENTAL MOVEMENTS AND POLITICS OF THE ASIAN ANTHROPOCENE

edited by
Paul Jobin, Ming-sho Ho and Hsin-Huang Michael Hsiao

About the EDITORS
Paul Jobin is Associate Research Fellow and convener of the Asian Social Transformation Thematic Research Team, at the Institute of Sociology, Academia Sinica, Taiwan.
Ming-sho Ho is Professor of Sociology at National Taiwan University and currently a visiting scholar at Harvard University’s Yenching Institute.
Hsin-Huang Michael Hsiao is Chairman of the Taiwan-Asia Exchange Foundation, Chairman of the executive committee of the Center for Southeast Asian Studies, National Cheng-Chi University, and Chair Professor of Hakka Studies, National Central University.

About the BOOK
“This collection provides a powerful and sophisticated analysis of how environmental movements influence politics in Asia, and how politics influences movements.”
John S. Dryzek, Centenary Professor, University of Canberra

“This important book reflects the challenges and questions currently foremost in scholars: activists’ and policy-makers’ minds - the Anthropocene, environmental justice, China’s Belt and Road Initiative, and post-politics - all addressed through the lens of environmental movements in Asia.”
Jonathan Rigg, Professor at the School of Geographical Sciences, University of Bristol

“How have authoritarianism, democratization and political change affected environmentalism in East and Southeast Asia? How have environmental mobilization and demands for environmental justice at the grassroots influenced politics there? These are among the vital questions answered by this insightful and well-crafted volume.”
Paul G. Harris, Chair Professor of Global and Environmental Studies, Education University of Hong Kong

THE FORESTS FOR THE PALMS
Essays on Politics of Haze and the Environment in Southeast Asia

by
Helena Varkkey

About the AUTHOR
Helena Varkkey is Senior Lecturer in the Department of International and Strategic Studies, Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences, University of Malaya.

About the BOOK
Transboundary haze has been a recurring problem in the Southeast Asian region since at least 1982. Why does this toxic form of air pollution still persist? Helena Varkkey, a Malaysian political scientist, has been studying this multifaceted problem for more than fifteen years. This book provides an ideal collection for those who want a clear but concise introduction to this complex issue. Its commentaries explore how often sensitive matters of ASEAN diplomacy, national interest or political patronage continue to stand in the way of clear skies in the region.

“The Forests for the Palms is a valuable collection that informs, provokes and urges us to pay attention to the processes behind the production of a commodity that has become both hard to avoid and deeply controversial. Dr Helena Varkkey is a leading expert on Southeast Asia’s palm oil industry. She conveys a wealth of scholarly expertise and research-informed analysis in an accessible format.”

About the BOOK
The decentralization of Islamic religious authority in Indonesia is known to many. Historically, the ulama—Islamic religious Threads of the Unfolding Web: The Old Javanese Tantu Panggelaran scholars—has not only acted as gatekeepers of faith, symbols of morality, and custodians of the Prophet Muhammad, but have also fought alongside national heroes against Dutch colonialism and checked wrongdoings of post-independence Indonesia. Yet, they have never been united to represent a single class. In the early 20th century, the ulama have organized themselves into grassroots-based movements such Nahdlatul Ulama (NU) and Muhammadiyah. Other groups that have made significant contributions to the dissemination of Islam to the masses are the Sufi tariqah leaders and the Sayyids (Hadramis of Yemeni descent).

Lately, new actors have asserted their Islamic identity to gain popular following. The New Santri explains the emergence new forms of religious authority and contestations within the group. It also examines the role of transnational movements in shaping the religious discourse in Indonesia. Some of the questions it seeks to address are: How was Islamic authority defined in the past and is it reconstructed recently? Which are the dominant groups today? Social media platforms Facebook, Twitter and Instagram have become integrated into the religious discourse today, but are we missing other mediums? Readers will be able to understand contemporary issues, players, and dynamics affecting Islam in Indonesia.

About the BOOK
This book reflects on the role of social media in the past two decades in Southeast Asia. It traces the emergence of social media discourse in Southeast Asia, and its potential as a “liberation technology” in both democratizing and authoritarian states. It explains the growing decline in internet freedom and increasingly repressive and manipulative use of social media tools by governments, and argues that social media is now an essential platform for control. The contributors detail the increasing role of “disinformation” and “fake news” production in Southeast Asia, and how national governments are creating laws which attempt to address this trend, but which often exacerbate the situation of state control.

From Grassroots Activism to Disinformation explores three main questions: How did social media begin as a vibrant space for grassroots activism to becoming a tool for disinformation? Who were the main actors in this transition: governments, citizens or the platforms themselves? Can reformists “reclaim” the digital public sphere? And if so, how?

THREADS OF THE UNFOLDING WEB
The Old Javanese Tantu Panggelaran

translated by Stuart Robson with a commentary by Hadi Sidomulyo

About the TRANSLATOR
Stuart Robson is a leading specialist in the fields of Old Javanese Language and Literature. He has occupied the position of Senior Lecturer in Javanese at the University of Leiden in the Netherlands (1979-91), Associate Professor of Indonesian at Monash University, Melbourne, Australia (1991-2001), as well as Visiting Professor at the Tokyo University of Foreign Studies (2014-15).

About the BOOK
"Threads of the Unfolding Web is essential reading for scholars, students and the general reader interested in Javanese history of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. Little is known about the history of Java in this period, which witnessed the beginnings of major global economic, political, cultural and religious change. It was a time when Java saw the decline of the once powerful eastern Javanese kingdom of Majapahit, the rise of Muslim kingdoms on Java’s northern coast and the arrival of the first Europeans in the person of the Portuguese Tomé Pires in Java’s cosmopolitan ports.

Stuart Robson’s expert English translation of the Tantu Panggeleran gives his readers ready access to this important work, which provides insight into how the author and his contemporary Javanese readers imagined the realities of the world in which they lived. We learn how they conceived the creation of this world and understood the relationship between the gods and men. Importantly, we learn also how they conceived a history of the foundation and spread of Bhairava Śivaite hermitages, shrines and temples. The work traces the history of this network from its origins in the vicinity of the Dieng plateau and the northern plains of Batang and Pekalongan to its subsequent expansion to the Tengger and Hyang Massifs of eastern Java. Hadi Sidomulyo’s impressive commentary, an amalgam of textual analysis and the survey of archaeological sites, is a model for the way in which further research of this sort might be conducted and underlines the urgent need for further archaeological surveys and the future excavation of archaeological sites."

PATTERNED SPLENDOUR
Textiles Presented on Javanese Metal and Stone Sculptures; Eighth to Fifteenth Centuries

by
Lesley S. Pullen
(Drawings by Yiran Huang)

About the AUTHOR
Lesley S. Pullen is a Post-Doctoral Research Associate in the School of Arts, SOAS University of London.

About the BOOK
There exist numerous free-standing figurative sculptures produced in Java between the eighth and fifteenth centuries whose dress displays detailed textile patterns. This surviving body of sculpture, carved in stone and cast in metal, varying in both size and condition, remain in archaeological sites and museums in Indonesia and worldwide. The equatorial climate of Java has precluded any textiles from this period surviving. Therefore this book argues the textiles represented on these sculptures offer a unique insight into the patterned splendour of the textiles in circulation during this period. Hence this publication will contribute to our knowledge of the textiles in circulation at that time by including the first comprehensive record of this body of sculpture, together with their textile patterns classified into a typology of styles within each chapter.

About the BOOK

The essays published here began as a series of lectures commemorating the bicentennial of Thomas Stamford Raffles’s establishment of a British Station in 1819. The essays draw on thirty-five years of archaeological investigations on and around Fort Canning, new readings of the Malay Annals, early Chinese records reporting Singapore, and the Portuguese and Dutch records to probe and challenge our understanding of Singapore’s history before Raffles. Altogether, these essays suggest that Singapore had a pre-1819 past that was deeply connected to the millennium-long maritime history of the Straits of Melaka and its links to the South China Sea and the Indian Ocean.

About the BOOK
Islamic religious teachers (asatizah) and scholars (ulama) play a significant role in providing spiritual leadership for the Singapore Malay/Muslim community. Lately, the group has been cast under the spotlight over a range of issues, from underperformance in the national examination, their ability to integrate into the broader society, exposure to radical and conservative ideas such as Salafism from the Middle East, and unemployment. Reaching for the Crescent examines a growing segment within the group, namely Islamic studies graduates, who obtained their degrees from universities in the Middle East and neighbouring Malaysia and Indonesia. It identifies factors that condition the proliferation of Islamic studies graduates in Singapore, examine the dominant religious institutions they attend, the nature of Islamic education they received, and their challenges. It tackles the impact of their religious education on the spiritual life and well-being of the community. Based on qualitative and quantitative data collected, the book calls for a rethinking of a prevailing discourse of Arabization of Singapore Muslims and academic approaches that focus on madrasah education and Islam through the security lens.

BAGAN
Ancient and Living Buddhist Traditions
by
Elizabeth H. Moore

Est. pub. date: Early 2022

About the AUTHOR
Elizabeth Moore is Professor in the School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London and Visiting Researcher at the Nalanda-Sriwijaya Centre, ISEAS – Yusof Ishak Institute, Singapore.

About the BOOK
Wider Bagan is the area outside the renowned Buddhist capital, places with vestiges of the eleventh to thirteenth century CE cultural tradition of Bagan. Tangible factors or attributes of the Bagan era in these places are found in the major river valleys of Myanmar: inscriptions, walls, water management features, temples and images. Collectively, these attributes record the spread of Buddhist properties and features supporting their associated lay communities. Many connect to earlier remains, and some have sustained their Bagan-period heritage to the present. From nearly six hundred attributes inventoried in Wider Bagan, nine nodal places are identified, places of interchange with each other, with the capital and with neighbouring regions. In assessing the evidence, an interdisciplinary approach is applied to incorporate field survey and local knowledge as well as published literature on archaeology, art history, geography and anthropology. Thematic and geographical analysis of the Wider Bagan data shows a related but different trajectory from that of eleventh to thirteenth century heyday of the capital. Bagan was a “purpose-built” religious and political centre, but in villages and towns of Wider Bagan, the styles of art and architecture and patronage from the capital were one within many earlier and later phases and capitals. While much has been written about Bagan, little on-the-ground attention has been devoted to areas beyond the capital. They have stories to tell, ones of the past and of the present, that are narrated in this book.
