The Elderly Must Endure
The ISEAS – Yusof Ishak Institute (formerly Institute of Southeast Asian Studies) is an autonomous organization established in 1968. It is a regional centre dedicated to the study of socio-political, security, and economic trends and developments in Southeast Asia and its wider geostrategic and economic environment. The Institute’s research programmes are grouped under Regional Economic Studies (RES), Regional Strategic and Political Studies (RSPS), and Regional Social and Cultural Studies (RSCS). The Institute is also home to the ASEAN Studies Centre (ASC), the Nalanda-Sriwijaya Centre (NSC) and the Singapore APEC Study Centre.

ISEAS Publishing, an established academic press, has issued more than 2,000 books and journals. It is the largest scholarly publisher of research about Southeast Asia from within the region. ISEAS Publishing works with many other academic and trade publishers and distributors to disseminate important research and analyses from and about Southeast Asia to the rest of the world.
The Elderly Must Endure

Ageing in the Minangkabau Community in Modern Indonesia

Rebecca Fanany and Ismet Fanany
Contents

Acknowledgements vii
Map of Indonesia viii
Map of West Sumatra ix
Map of the Village of Koto x
Aminah’s Family Tree xi

1. Introduction 1
2. Ageing in the Past and Present 21
3. Adat Traditions and the Elderly 52
4. Religion and the Elderly 75
5. Language and the Elderly 95
6. Ageing in the Village 116
7. Ageing in Padang 140
8. Ageing in the Rantau 171
9. Ageing in an Institution 201
10. Ageing and Cultural Consonance 225
11. The Elderly Must Endure 259

Afterword 271
References 275
Index 297
About the Authors 309
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The authors wish to acknowledge the contributions and support of everyone who took part in the research that allowed this book to be written. We specifically wish to mention the directors and staff of PSTW Sabai nan Aluih in Sicincin, West Sumatra, and PSTW Kasih Sayang Ibu in Batusangkar, West Sumatra, who generously allowed us to visit their institutions and discussed the context in which they work. They also facilitated us in talking with residents and understanding their situations.

Of course, we wish to thank the large number of Minangkabau of all ages who talked to us about their experiences and shared with us the details of their lives and the lives of their older relatives. In particular, we are grateful to the members of the Valley family who are profiled in this book as well as the younger individuals, who discussed their views and told us about their recollections and hopes for the future. Without their contributions, this book would be a much lesser work. While their names and the name of their village have been changed to protect their privacy, the details of their lives emphasize the themes of this book and bring them to life.

Finally, we wish to acknowledge the support of the School of Humanities and Social Sciences at Deakin University in Melbourne for the continued support required to complete the research contained in this book, as well as the Center for Research on Healthy Aging at Universitas Baiturrahmah in Padang, West Sumatra, which is working to understand the nature of Indonesia’s older population and contribute to making their lives healthier and more satisfying.

Rebecca Fanany
Ismet Fanany
Map of West Sumatra
The Village of Koto

Residential areas concentrate around the village roads and the intersection with the main road. Rice fields and other productive land surround the clusters of houses.
It should be noted that children of the female members of the family will also be part of Aminah’s line. Children of the male members, however, will be members of their mother’s family.