JIIA Fellowship 1996

The Japan Institute of International Affairs (JIIA) is now accepting applications for the JIIA Fellowship for the year 1996. This Fellowship was initiated in 1989 to promote intellectual collaboration and mutual understanding between Japan and ASEAN countries and to provide young ASEAN scholars with opportunities to conduct advanced study in Japan. This fellowship is a research program for young ASEAN scholars. The prescription and requirements of the program are as follows:

ELIGIBILITY
* Ph.D. holders or Ph.D. candidates and equivalents (preferably researchers below 45) who demonstrate research competence and have an interest in one or more of the following suggested fields of study:
  A. ASEAN in Domestic and Sub-Regional Dimensions
  B. ASEAN in Global Dimensions
  C. Southeast Asia/ASEAN-Japan Relations
* Proficiency in English (Proficiency in Japanese is desirable but not required)
* Citizens of ASEAN countries
* Researchers who have not received any grants of fellowship in Japan are given priority.

APPLICATION
Applicants should submit the following documents to JIIA
* A completed JIIA Fellowship application form
* An original research proposal on a topic in the suggested fields of study, maximum 10 pages (typewritten in double-space)
* A research paper on a theme chosen in the suggested fields of study. Previous work is acceptable. It should be typewritten in double-space 15-30 pages.
* All applications should be submitted by January 31, 1996.

EAST ASIA in TRANSITION: TOWARD a NEW REGIONAL ORDER
Edited by Robert S. Ross

With contributions by leading authorities on the security and political economy of East Asia, this volume examines the implications of the profound strategic and economic transformations in the region since the demise of the Soviet Union ended Cold War polarization and the emergence of new East Asian economic powers transformed regional economic relations. By studying the implications of these strategic and economic transformations for the interests of the great powers and key local powers and for the maintenance of regional stability, the contributors ponder how the changing relations among these states might evolve into a new regional order characterized by extensive stability and cooperation.

AUSTRALIA'S MARITIME BRIDGE into ASIA
Edited by Sam Bateman & Dick Sherwood

Australia's Maritime Bridge into Asia reveals the great potential for Australia to participate in maritime developments in the Asia-Pacific region. It explains how Australia has a number of comparative advantages over competitors from Europe and North America in exploiting opportunities in the Asia-Pacific region. It sets out Australia's successes in maritime fields such as ship design, boatbuilding, exploration of offshore oil and gas, information technology, and particular areas of marine science. Australia is thus well placed to take advantage of the opportunities opening up in 'new' areas such as innovative ship construction, aquaculture, mariculture, marine biotechnology and systems design and software. With its skills and expertise, Australia can provide a building block for regional co-operation in the Asia-Pacific.

Are you missing important articles on South East Asia?

South East Asia RESEARCH

Editor: Dr Ian Brown, School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London

Now in its fourth volume, South East Asia Research has quickly established itself as a major journal in the field of South East Asia studies. The journal aims to publish new and innovative research on South East Asia, while at the same time helping to develop the major debates on the region's history, economics, geography, politics and culture.

Authors are drawn from leading research institutions in South East Asia, Europe, North America, Australia and Japan.

Recent articles include:
- The changing religious role of women in pre-modern South East Asia — Barbara Watson Andaya
- Transgender men and homosexuality in the Southern Philippines — Mark Johnson
- Death to the tiger! The development of tiger and leopard rituals in Java 1605-1906 — Peter Boogard
- The writer, the horseshoe crab, his 'golden blossom' and her clients: tales of prostitution in contemporary Thai short stories — Rachel Harrison
- On the waterfront: labour racketeering in the port of Cebu — John Sidey
- Implications of rapid economic growth for Thailand’s political structure — Anand Panyarachun

To ensure that you don’t miss more important research, please fill in the form below to enter a subscription to South East Asia Research — a major addition to the literature on South East Asia.

Peace, security & global change

Peace Review endeavours to make sense of a rapidly transforming world and its primary focus is peace, security and global change. It brings together the perspectives of leading scholars and practitioners from around the world, and particularly from the Asia-Pacific. It was launched in the context of the profound and diverse nature of contemporary global change which raises difficult practical and theoretical questions cutting across disciplinary boundaries. By cultivating a multidisciplinary perspective Peace Review aims to establish connections between the local, national, and international and transnational levels of organisation and between the social, economic and geopolitical dimensions of contemporary change. It provides a forum for normative, analytical and empirical approaches to the study of peace and security.

Volume 7, Number 1, May/June 1995:

Including:
* The Politics of Pan Asianism: Culture, Capitalism and Diplomacy in East Asia by David Wright/Neville
* An Inclusive Paradigm of Peace: The Kingdom of God by Bernard Swan
* International Identity Construction and the Liberal Peace by Katherine Smith
* Possible Pathologies of Future Social Defence Systems by Brian Martin
* Globalisation, the State and Identity Politics by Dennis Altman
* The Hungarian Peace Movement Today by Thomas Weber
