

Two former prime ministers meet on 17 June 1986. Tunku Abdul Rahman receives Tun Hussein Onn at the Tunku's residence in Penang.
Source: The Star, Malaysia.

Malaysian Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman, in jovial mood at a tea reception, is seen with Singapore's Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew and former Chief Minister David Marshall on 16 November 1961. The Tunku was en route to the London Talks on the formation of Malaysia. Source: The Straits Times © Singapore Press Holdings Limited. Reprinted with permission.

Malaysian Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman visits a United Nations' exhibition on 28 October 1957. He is seen talking with several foreign dignitaries. Source: National Archives of Singapore.

Malaysian Prime Minister Abdul Razak is escorted by his Singapore counterpart Lee Kuan Yew and is greeted by Singapore's Defence Minister Goh Keng Swee on 13 November 1973. The Malaysian Premier was on his first three-day official visit since Singapore became independent on 9 August 1965. Source: The Straits Times © Singapore Press Holdings Limited. Reprinted with permission.

Malaysian Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad bids farewell to Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat after their meeting in Kuala Lumpur on 17 October 1999. Arafat was on a one-day visit to discuss bilateral cooperation and the Middle East peace process with the Malaysian leader. Source: Photo by Getty Images.

U.S. President George W. Bush shakes hands with the Malaysian Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad on 14 May 2002 at the Oval Office of the White House in Washington, D.C. The two leaders talked about the war on terrorism during their meeting. Source: Photo by Getty Images.

The KD Tunku Abdul Rahman docks at the Teluk Sepanggar Naval Base in Sabah on 17 September 2009. This is the first of two French Scorpene submarines delivered to Malaysia. The submarines measuring 63.5 metres long have a displacement of 1,590 tonnes. Each is manned by a 31-man crew and has a submerge depth of up to 200 metres. Each is also equipped with six torpedo tubes, which can launch simultaneously, as well as anti-ship and anti-submarine torpedoes and anti-surface missiles. Source: The Star, Malaysia.

Malaysian Prime Minister Abdullah Ahmad Badawi is seen waving with Japanese counterpart Shinzo Abe (2nd L), Philippine President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo (C), Singapore Prime Minister Lee Hsien Loong (2nd R) and Myanmar leader General Soe Win at the meeting of the ASEAN-Japan leaders during the 12th Summit of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) in Cebu, Philippines on 14 January 2007.
Source: Photo by Getty Images.

Malaysia's sixth Prime Minister Najib Abdul Razak shakes hands with President Hu Jintao of China in the Malaysian Premier's office in Putrajaya, Malaysia on 11 November 2009. China and Malaysia signed a loan agreement for the Penang second bridge project, according to a joint statement.

Source: Photo by Getty Images.