

Contributors

The Editor

SHANKAR SHARMA was a Fellow and Co-ordinator of the Energy Projects at the Institute of Southeast Asian Studies. He holds a Ph.D. degree in economics from the University of Hawaii at Manoa. He has published six monographs (edited or authored) and more than two dozen articles on energy and the economy of the Asia-Pacific region. He was also an editor of ASEAN Economic Bulletin and a Consultant Editor of Hydrocarbon Asia. He has served as an expert to many national and international agencies including UN-ESCAP, Asian Development Bank, and the Atlantic Council of the United States, and as a member to the World Energy Council Committee of Energy Issues of Developing Countries.

The Contributors

ARNOLD B. BAKER is Director of Public Issues for ARCO, Los Angeles, California. He holds a Ph.D. degree in economics from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University. His professional assignments have included serving as a staff economist at the U.S. Federal Trade Commission, Special Assistant to the Undersecretary of the U.S. Treasury for Monetary Affairs, Strategic Planning Manager of ARCO Oil and Gas Company, and Director of Energy Market Analysis in ARCO Corporate Planning. He has authored studies, book chapters and articles on energy and economic policy issues.

JOHN P. FERRITER is Deputy Executive Director of the International Energy Agency (IEA), Paris. Before joining the IEA in 1989, Mr Ferriter was with the United States Foreign Service where he held a number of positions including Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for International Energy Resources and Food Policy, and Ambassador to Djibouti. He was educated in the University of the City of New York, Fordham University, and Harvard University, and has earned degrees in economics, law and public administration.

UROOJ MALIK holds graduate and postgraduate degrees in Natural Resources Management and Mineral/Energy Economics from the University of Wisconsin-Madison and the University of Arizona, respectively. He works as a Project Economist in the Energy and Industry Department of the Asian Development Bank (ADB) in the Philippines and is involved in a number of energy sector projects in the Asia-Pacific region. His most recent involvement has been in supervising and co-ordinating a major study of the ADB entitled "Environmental Considerations in Energy Development".

HUGH E. NORTON is the Management Director (since 1989) of the British Petroleum Company p.l.c. Prior to taking the present position, Mr Norton served as Managing Director and Chief Executive of BP Exploration Company, Managing Director of BP's associate companies in Singapore, Malaysia, and Hong Kong, and Director of Planning and Regional Director for Near East, Middle East and Indian Sub-Continent in BP. He was educated at Winchester College and Trinity College, Oxford and has been working in BP since 1959.

PHILIP K. VERLEGER, Jr. is a Visiting Fellow at the Institute for International Economics, Washington, D.C. Dr Verleger holds a Ph.D. in economics from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He has served as a senior staff economist on the President's Council of Economic Advisers, and as a senior adviser on domestic energy matters at the U.S. Treasury. From 1982 to 1984, he was a Vice President in the commodities futures group of Drexel Burnham Lambert. Dr Verleger has published books and articles on the economics of the petroleum industry. He also consults exclusively through the firm of Charles Riven Associates.