BILATERAL LEGACIES

IN EAST AND SOUTHEAST ASIA

The Institute of Southeast Asian Studies (ISEAS) was established as an autonomous organization in 1968. It is a regional centre dedicated to the study of socio-political, security and economic trends and developments in Southeast Asia and its wider geostrategic and economic environment. The Institute's research programmes are the Regional Economic Studies (RES, including ASEAN and APEC), Regional Strategic and Political Studies (RSPS), and Regional Social and Cultural Studies (RSCS).

ISEAS Publishing, an established academic press, has issued more than 2,000 books and journals. It is the largest scholarly publisher of research about Southeast Asia from within the region. ISEAS Publishing works with many other academic and trade publishers and distributors to disseminate important research and analyses from and about Southeast Asia to the rest of the world.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This edited volume is the outcome of collaborative efforts between a number of institutions and individuals. Funding for the meeting was generously provided by Dr Hari Singh through the Asian Political and International Studies Association (APISA). The funds were in turn provided by a grant from the Swedish International Development Cooperation Agency (SiDA). The Konrad Adenauer Stiftung (KAS) in Seoul provided additional funding for the discussants and the opening and closing dinners. For this generosity I am thankful to the then country representative of KAS, Dr Colin Duerkop. Since then the KAS and Dr Duerkop have gone on to co-fund a number of collaborative projects in Japan, Myanmar, Thailand and Turkey.

The original workshop was hosted by the Jeju Peace Institute in 2008 that provided the venue and administrative support for the meeting. For its efforts I am thankful to Ambassador Han and Dr Tae Ryong Yoon. Since the early conception of the project it has undergone a number of changes that included an expansion of the scope of the project.

Thanks are also due to the two anonymous referees. The time spent on the review process and the revisions arising from it has naturally strengthened the book significantly. Finally, I would also like to thank ISEAS Publishing for seeing the book through in a diligent and expeditious manner.

ABOUT THE CONTRIBUTORS

N. Ganesan is Professor of Southeast Asian Politics at the Hiroshima Peace Institute in Japan where he has been since 2004 and from 2011 to 2013 served concurrently as Visiting Professor at the National Graduate Institute for Policy Studies (GRIPS) in Tokyo. His research and publication interests are in sources of interstate and intrastate tensions. From 1990 to 2003 he was Senior Lecturer in political science and Southeast Asian Studies at the National University of Singapore.

Pavin Chachavalpongpan is Associate Professor at the Centre for Southeast Asian Studies at Kyoto University and was previously a fellow at the Institute of Southeast Asian Studies, Singapore. Earning his PhD from SOAS, University of London, Pavin is the author of Reinventing Thailand: Thaksin and His Foreign Policy (2010) and A Plastic Nation: The Curse of Thainess in Thai–Burmese Relations (2005). From January to May 2011, Pavin was a visiting lecturer at the Department of Political Science, National University of Singapore.

Tae-Ryong Yoon is HK Research Professor in the Asiatic Research Institute at Korea University, South Korea. He received his PhD in Political Science from Columbia University in 2006. His research interests are international security in general, alliance theory, and Northeast Asian politics (including Korea–Japan–U.S. relations, North–South Korean relations, and the Korean reunification issue).

Ramses Amer is Associate Professor and PhD in Peace and Conflict Research, Associated Fellow with the Institute for Security and Development Policy (ISDP), Sweden. Major areas of his research include (1) security issues and conflict resolution in Southeast Asia and the wider Pacific Asia and (2) the role of the United Nations in the international system. His most recent books are The Security-Development Nexus: Peace, Conflict and Development (2012, co-edited with Ashok Swain and Joakim Öjendal); Conflict Management and Dispute Settlement in East Asia (2011; co-edited with Keyuan Zou) and International Relations in Southeast Asia: Between Bilateralism and Multilateralism (2010; co-edited with N. Ganesan).

Maung Aung Myoe received his BA in International Relations from the University of Mandalay, an MA in the same discipline from the International University of Japan, and a PhD in Political Science and International Relations from the Australian National University. He was a visiting fellow at the Institute of Defence and Strategic Studies (IDSS) and a postdoctoral fellow at the Asia Research Institute, National University of Singapore. His research interests cover Myanmar politics and foreign relations as well as regionalism, security and strategy, and civil-military relations. He is Professor at the Graduate School of International Relations and teaches Southeast Asian Politics and International Relations at the International University of Japan in Niigata.

Lam Peng Er is a Senior Research Fellow at the East Asian Institute, National University of Singapore. He obtained his PhD from Columbia University. His latest single-authored book is Japan's Peace-building Diplomacy: Seeking a More Active Political Role (2009).
