ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This book is the revised and updated version of my PhD thesis which I did at the University of New South Wales at the Australian Defence Force Academy (UNSW@ADFA) from 2011 to 2014. It would not have been completed without the support and encouragement of many people.

First of all, I am greatly indebted to Professor Carlyle A. Thayer at the School of Humanities and Social Sciences (HASS) of the UNSW@ADFA. His exemplary expertise and highly inspiring and responsible supervision made my PhD study an enlightening and enjoyable journey. I would also like to thank Mrs Zubeida Thayer for taking very good care of me and my family during our stay in Canberra.

I owe lots of gratitude to HASS for providing me with great facilities and support during my study. My special thanks go to Professor David Lovell, Head of School, for his kind support from the very beginning of my study. I would also like to thank Professor Craig Stockings, Professor Jian Zhang, Mrs Jo Muggleton, Mrs Bernadette McDermott, Mrs Marilyn Anderson-Smith, Mrs Shirley Ramsay and Mrs Marg McGee for their guidance and support. My thanks also go to Mr Christopher Dawkins at the Academy Library as well as Mrs Elvira Berra and other staff at the Research Student Unit for their kind help during my study.

I am deeply grateful to the Australian Government for granting me with a Prime Minister's Australia Asia Award (under the Endeavour scholarship programme), without which my PhD study would have been impossible in the first place. I would not have won the scholarship without the kind help from Professor William Malley, Dr Do Son Hai and Dr Dao Minh Hong who acted as my referees.

Under the scholarship, I have also received very efficient and timely support from various case managers at Austraining International (now Scope Global), for which I am very grateful.

I would also like to thank Mrs Tran Thanh Thuy, Mrs Pham Thi Hong Lan for their help with data collection, Dr Nguyen Dang Thang for his helpful academic discussions, and Mr Quynh Vu and his family for being our kind and helpful friends since we arrived in Canberra.

This book as well as my PhD study would have been impossible without the support and encouragement of my family. My parents have always been a great source of encouragement for my academic endeavours since I was a little boy. I am thankful to my parents-in-law for their support, and especially my father-in-law for his intellectual inspiration. My wife Nguyen Ngoc Tuong Ngan has always been very supportive, and I am grateful for all the sacrifices that she has made to assist me in completing my study. I would also like to thank my daughter Le Hong Thien Kim for being a little friend of mine whose lovely distractions helped me survive the stress of studying.

Parts of this book draw on journal articles that have been published elsewhere. Chapter 3 is based on “Vietnam’s Domestic and Foreign Policy Nexus: Doi Moi Foreign Policy Reform, and Sino-Vietnamese Normalization”, Asian Politics and Policy 5, no. 3 (2012); Chapter 6 on “Vietnam’s South China Sea Disputes with China: The Economic Determinants”, Korean Journal of Defense Analysis 26, no. 2 (2014); and Chapter 7 on “Vietnam’s Hedging Strategy against China since Normalization”, Contemporary Southeast Asia 35, no. 3 (2013). I thank the editors and publishers for permission to use them in this book.

Last but not least, during the preparation of this book manuscript, I have received generous help from Mr Ng Kok Kiong and Ms Rahilah Yusuf of ISEAS Publishing, for which I am grateful. I would also like to thank three anonymous reviewers for their valuable comments and suggestions that have helped to improve the manuscript.
