ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

In March 2019, the Australian National University's Myanmar Research Centre hosted the bi-annual Myanmar Update. Bringing together academics, researchers, policymakers and active members of Myanmar's NGO and civil society sector, the theme of "Living with Myanmar" sparked strong debate, conversations of which are included in this volume.

The Myanmar Update is a major venue at which to present cutting-edge scholarship on political, social and economic affairs in Myanmar. Now in its third decade, it is one of only two long-standing, regularly held international conferences on the country and has consistently produced high quality publications since the 1990s. We thank the conference speakers and participants and encourage everyone reading this volume to forge ongoing connections that will further enhance our knowledge and understanding of Myanmar.

International conferences such as the Myanmar Update require tremendous collective effort and we thank those members of the MRC who supported both the conference and preparation for the volume. The MRC was launched in 2015. Since then, the Centre has served as the university's academic hub for Myanmar activities. The Centre provides a flexible and inclusive structure to maintain its activities, build relationships with our Myanmar partners, and create new opportunities for ANU staff and students. The strength of these partnerships is reflected in the growing attendance of Myanmar scholars in the conference series and this volume.

We want to thank the ANU for their ongoing financial and institutional assistance for both the conference and the volume series. We are especially grateful to the College of Asia and the Pacific and its Department of Political and Social Change for their ongoing enthusiasm and commitment. Particular thanks to Maxine McArthur, whose assistance with copy-editing, indexing and the layout helped to ensure the volume's high production standards. We also acknowledge the generosity of the Myanmar studies community whose ongoing support and scholarly reviews provided critical feedback and commentary on each of the papers.

Special thanks to the collective efforts of our amazing contributors. The strength of the analysis in each of the chapters is testament to your hard work. We appreciate all of the time and effort each of you have put into developing these chapters, and for your patience and collegiality throughout the publication process.

Finally, thanks go to the ongoing support of Ng Kok Kiong and Rahilah Yusuf at the ISEAS – Yusof Ishak Institute in Singapore. Once again, it has been a pleasure working with you on this volume and we look forward to doing so again in the future.
