

THE AUTHOR

Andrew Selth is an Adjunct Professor at the Griffith Asia Institute, Griffith University, in Brisbane, Australia. He has been studying international security issues and Asian affairs for 50 years, as a diplomat, strategic intelligence analyst and research scholar. Between 1974 and 1986, he was assigned to the Australian embassies in Rangoon and Seoul, and the Australian High Commission in Wellington. He later held senior positions in the Defence Intelligence Organisation and the Office of National Assessments. He has been an Adjunct Associate Professor in the Coral Bell School of Asia Pacific Affairs at the Australian National University (ANU), a Visiting Fellow at the ANU's Strategic and Defence Studies Centre (twice), a Chevening Scholar at St Antony's College, Oxford University, an Australian Research Council Fellow at Griffith University and a Harold White Fellow at the National Library of Australia.

Dr Selth has published twelve books and more than 50 peer-reviewed articles and research papers, most of them about Myanmar (Burma). Among the latter, his more recent works include Myanmar's Armed Forces and the Rohingya Crisis (2018), Making Myanmar: Colonial Burma and Popular Western Culture (2020), Myanmar's Military Mindset: An Exploratory Survey (2021), and Intelligence and Intelligence Agencies in Myanmar since the 2021 Coup (2023). Over the years, he has contributed over 400 other articles, op-eds and book reviews to the public debate on Myanmar. About 170 of these shorter pieces have been collected and published in two anthologies.
