

About the Contributors

Juthika Badkar is a Senior Analyst with the Labour Market Dynamics group at the New Zealand Department of Labour. In late 2008 until the end of March 2009 Juthika is on a part-time secondment as a Visiting Research Fellow at the Institute of Policy Studies, Victoria University, Wellington. Juthika has worked in a range of areas of immigration research for the past four years. Prior to this she has worked in public health surveillance and research. Juthika has a Master of Public Health from the University of Otago.

Paul Callister has over the last two decades undertaken research for a wide range of public and private sector organisations. Currently Paul is a Senior Research Fellow at the Institute of Policy Studies, Victoria University, Wellington. Paul's recent research has focused on labour market and demographic issues relating to both the individual and the household. This has included a focus on the polarisation of work across households; ageing and labour market change, fertility and 'family-friendly' policies; gendered migration; gender and education; the transmission of ethnicity within households; as well as the links between changes in the labour market and changes in the form and function of households.

Chia Siow Yue is currently Senior Research Fellow at the Singapore Institute of International Affairs (SIIA). She was formerly Director and CEO of the Institute of Southeast Asian Studies (ISEAS) and retired from that position in October 2002. She was concurrently Director (1998-2002) of the Singapore APEC Study Centre and founding Regional Coordinator (1998-2004) of the East Asian Development Network (EADN) a regional research network funded by the World Bank. Prior to her ISEAS appointment, Dr. Chia was professor of Economics at the National University of Singapore for over 25 years. Dr. Chia obtained her BA Honours in Singapore at the University of Malaya, and her Ph D in Economics from McGill University. She specialises on the economies of East Asia and has written and published extensively on international trade and investment, international labour mobility, income distribution, and ASEAN and East Asian regional economic integration. She has consulted for numerous international and regional agencies such as the World Bank, ILO, UNCTAD, UNIDO, WTO, UN-ESCAP, Asian Development Bank, and ASEAN Secretariat.

Doris Magsaysay Ho is President and CEO of the Magsaysay Group of Companies which has interests in shipping, human resources and business process outsourcing services. She is a member of the APEC Business Advisory Council and sits as Co-Chair of the Facilitation Working Group.

Graeme Hugo is University Professorial Research Fellow, Professor of the Department of Geographical and Environmental Studies and Director of the National Centre for Social Applications of Geographic Information Systems at the University of Adelaide. His research interests are in population issues in Australia and South East Asia, especially migration. His books include Australia's Changing Population (Oxford University Press), The Demographic Dimension in Indonesian Development (with T. H. Hull, V. J. Hull and G. W.

Jones, Oxford University Press), International Migration Statistics: Guidelines for Improving Data Collection Systems (with A.S. Oberai, H. Zlotnik and R. Bilsborrow, International Labour Office), Worlds in Motion: Understanding International Migration at Century's End (with D. S. Massey, J. Arango, A. Kouaouci, A. Pellegrino and J. E. Taylor, Oxford University Press), several of the 1986, 1991 and 1996 census based Atlas of the Australian People Series (AGPS), Australian Immigration: A Survey of the Issues (with M. Wooden, R. Holton and J. Sloan, AGPS), New Forms of Urbanisation: Beyond the Urban-Rural Dichotomy (with A. Champion, Ashgate) and Australian Census Analytic Program: Australia's Most Recent Immigrants (Australian Bureau of Statistics). In 2002 he secured an ARC Federation Fellowship over five years for his research project, 'The new paradigm of international migration to and from Australia: dimensions, causes and implications'. His current research has focused on migration and development, environment and migration and migration policy.

Jai-Joon Hur is Director of Office for Labour Market Research in Korea Labour Institute. He has published many papers and books analysing the Korean labour market vis-a-vis changes in the international economic environment as well as technological change. His recent work includes examining migration issues in Korea. He has been advising policy decision makers on commitments regarding movement of people in bilateral and regional trade agreements. His work experience and activities include Senior Economist at the World Bank, ILO consultant, and Delegate of Korean government in the Korea-United States Free Trade Agreement Negotiations.

Soogil Young, President of the National Strategy Institute in Seoul, Korea, has been serving as Chair of Korea National Committee for Pacific Economic Cooperation (KOPEC) since November 2006. Dr. Young served as a senior economist at four governmental economic research institutes during 1978-1998, including as a Senior Fellow for the Korean Development Institute (KDI), and as President of the Korea Institute for International Economic Policy (KIEP). He served as Korea's Ambassador to the OECD in Paris during 1998-2001 where he concurrently served as Chairman of the Advisory Board on the Development Centre. Dr. Young has been active on many blue-ribbon committees for the Korean government on economic policy matters since the early 1980s, including three Presidential Commissions. He was the founding Coordinator of the PECC Trade Policy Forum during 1983-1986, and also of the PECC Finance Forum during 2001-2005. Dr. Young has written extensively on trade, development and international cooperation from Korea's perspective. He obtained his Ph.D. in economics from the Johns Hopkins University in the United States.

Sherry M. Stephenson is Head of Institutional Relations at the Organization of American States (OAS). She is an expert in the area of international trade policy and has worked more than 25 years in this area. For two years she was Director of the Department of Trade at the OAS and served as Deputy Director of the Trade Unit at the OAS for six years during the Free Trade Area of the Americas negotiations. She received a Ph.D. in International Economics from the University of Geneva and an M.A. in Economics from New York University. She has served as an Advisor to the Ministry of Trade, Government of Indonesia, Jakarta, and has held positions with the GATT and UNCTAD Secretariats in Geneva as well as with the Trade Directorate of the OECD in Paris. She has been an active member of the Pacific Economic Cooperation Council (PECC) for many years and intensely involved in supporting the APEC process. Her publications address several issues of trade policy, particularly services, non-tariff barriers and regional economic integration. She has edited two volumes on services trade and reform and published more than fifty articles and papers in journals and books.

About the Contributors

